DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

1. Claims 3 and 5 – 7 are objected to because of the following informalities: In claim 3, line 7, “the signal” lacks antecedent basis. In claims 5 - 7, lines 3 respectively, “the second electrodes” lack antecedent basis. Appropriate corrections are required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 2-7, 9-11 and 13-18 are rejected as being anticipated by Morimoto et al.

Regarding claim 2, Morimoto et al disclose a capacitive touch sensor including a substrate 1 having a plurality of first electrode detection elements Dx, Dy, Dz and a second electrode D facing the plurality of first elements such that capacitance elements Cx, Cy, Cz are formed, wherein the second electrode is displaceable in a direction of the first elements when an external force is applied Fx to body 20a (See Col. 5, lines 22 – 31 and 64 – 67 and Col. 6, line 1 – 32).

Regarding claim 3, a signal is input to the first elements when the second electrode D and the third electrodes are in contact (See Col. 5, lines 64 – 67 and Col. 6, lines 1 – 2, 19 – 23 and 33 – 41).

Regarding claim 4, a pressure sensitive resistance member R is arranged between the first detection elements and the second electrode (See Fig. 1, See Col. 4, lines 53 – 57).

Art Unit: 2855

Regarding claims 5 – 7, the sensors include a core member 21 of rigid material (See Col. 6, lines 9 – 18).

Regarding claims 9 – 11, the sensors Dx, Dy, Dz, are arranged in a matrix (See Fig. 15).

Regarding claims 13 – 15, the surface 20a receiving the applied force has no projections and depressions (See Fig. 1, See Col. 5, lines 22 – 26).

Regarding claim 16, the second electrode D comprises a protrusion 21a (See Fig. 1, See Col. 5, lines 16 – 21).

Regarding claim 17, an insulating layer R covers the first elements (See Fig. 1).

Regarding claim 18, changes in capacitance are detected using a signal input to the first detection elements when the second electrode contacts the third electrode (See Col. 6, lines 30 – 41).

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to these claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new grounds of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Okada et al (6,809,529) disclose a force detector using capacitance elements wherein power consumption can be efficiently suppressed.

Sato et al (6,518,083) disclose a surface shape recognition sensor including a plurality of capacitive detection elements.
